by this ady, within a few months, the following is one of the most remarkable:

Mrs. Du Boyck—Dear Madam: I am very grateful for the benefit my daughter has received from your practice. She was afflicted with very bed inflammation and Opacity of the Cornea. She was entirely blind with one eye and nearly so with the others, and I began to fear she would lose her eyesight entirely. She also suffered greatly from the pain and anguish. Hind been treated by many physicians; smoog them were some of the best of Philadelphia and New-York, including the New-York infirmary; but she continued to grow worse. I was about to give up in despair of ever trying again, but hearing of your great success in the treatment of the eyes, I resolved to make one more trial, and I immediately placed her under your treatment, on the 19th of last May, and I fee that heaven has blessed your efforts, for my daughter is cured, and can see he well ont of the eye that was blind as any person. She was under treatment at the Eye Infirmary in New York the months. I am Madam, your, truly,

"One of the most tridy natural and yet accept untilling startes we ever remember having read. In no instance does the gibed author "o'erstep the modesty of nature," and yet every diaplet is full of incidents and descriptions of heart-moving pa nos. The story itself is particularly good, and admirably tood. There is a vast amount of graphically sketched character in the book. The various scores, full of spirit and interest, conduce gradually to a full development of the pict, which is woven with uncommon skill Alegether, the work is a most decided success." [Examinet.

From Marion Harland, berself the writer of the most popular series of Novels ever published in this country.

To Massas, Drawy & Jackson: I speak my honest sentiments when I pronounce "Benjah" the best work of faction ever published by a Southern writer. To my mind, he American authorise has ever produced a greater book. Can it be true that Miss Evants young? There is a lifetime of thought and research, of struggles of mind and heart, in "Benish". I have read every word with inthese interest. The character painting is fine, the description of passing events and scenery graphic and striking, but to me the chief charm of the book lies in the vivid portisiture of the doubts, the conflicts, the yearnings and the mail triumph of a great soul seeking for truth. If the public can appreciate a theroughly good work, they will thank you for having given their "Benjah."

One volume. 12mo Cloth, $1.

Reminiscences of Madame Vertris, Mr. Macreaty, Charlette Charlette and Edmund Kean, their jests and toeir conversation so pleasantly re-toid as to make the reafer aimoet feel himself one of the party-pleasant takings to read-abound in the "Leares." Clear and fortoide articisions—mostly comparative—of each of there as well as of Ellen Tree, Mass Fancis, Readel, and Ristori's and good things generally of every theatrical luminary of the present or of the past half century, will gave this little volume next value as part of the history of the stage, both in Eugland and America.

The touching story of Coralie Walton, the Country Actress, should be read, especially by all young ladies and gentlement taking an ambitious interest in the stage.

In his travels Mr. Vandethold has been a close observer, and repeats his experiences in the gayest velo, with all the graces of a good writer. In all respects the book is entertaining and rehable. SHELDON & Co., Publishers, New-York, THE MATHEMATICAL MONTHLY. THE MATHEMATICAL MONTHLY.
